

Justin Pierce worked for a consulting firm that represented U.S. companies on international trade matters, including import competition from China. He last worked for the firm in 2008, and he has no financial interest in the firm.