

April 9, 2018

Disclosure statement: Haoming Liu

Article “Severe Air Pollution and Labor Productivity: Evidence from Industrial Towns in China,” to be published in the American Economic Journal: Applied Economics

The author declares that he has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper. All data (with workers’ identities made anonymous, to protect individual privacy) and code are made available for purposes of replication.

(1) Sources of financial support (other than university salary and faculty research account, through Singapore’s Ministry of Education Academic Research Fund Tier 1).
None.

(2) Interested party from whom author has received significant financial support, summing to at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like. An “interested” party is any individual, group, or organization that has a financial, ideological, or political stake related to the article.
None.

(3) Paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities. A “relevant” organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.
None.

(4) The disclosures required above apply to any close relative or partner of any author.
No conflict of interest to report.

(5) Each author must disclose if another party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.
No party reviewed the paper prior to circulation.