

John Haltiwanger (for Dynamism Diminished: The Role of Housing Markets and Credit Conditions):

In compliance with the requirement of the Journal's disclosure policy, I provide the following information. The research has been supported by grants from the Kauffman Foundation and the Goldman Sachs Global Markets Initiative. During the past three years, I have also received financial support in the form of grants from the following organizations over the last three years: Russell Sage, the National Science Foundation, and the Sloan Foundation. The other grant support is not directly related to the research reported here. I have no relevant or material financial interests relating to the research in this article.