

May 15, 2024

As one of the authors of the paper titled “Does Turnover Inhibit Specialization? Evidence from a Skill Survey in Peru,” I declare that I have no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper. The submission is original work and is not under review at any other publication.

Peruvian survey conducted as part of the project “Closing the Child Labor and Forced Labor Evidence Gap: Impact Evaluations (Randomized control trial impact evaluations examining the effects of an information campaign on child labor in Peru)”. The survey, carried out by the Innovations for Poverty Action (IPA), relied on IRB Princeton University Institutional Review Board for Human Subjects, Office of Research Integrity and Assurance #7338 and on Universidad Catolica de Chile, #150615001.

The International Monetary Fund reviews the paper before its release per its Communications policy.

Sincerely,

Andrea Atencio De Leon