

Disclosure Statement for “Participating or not? Assessing Selection of Female Entrepreneurs into Entrepreneurial Training Program”

Cristina Mac Gregor Vanegas, The University of Chicago

Funding for this study was received from USAID, the Women’s Leadership in Small and Medium Enterprises trust fund (WLSME), the Umbrella Facility for Gender Equality (UFGE), and the World Bank Development Impact Evaluation Program. This project would not have been possible without the financial support of the Mexico Institute for Entrepreneurs (INADEM) for the program, and the project’s partner and implementing institution CREA (Comunidades de Emprendedores Sociales) and in particular its Founder, Leticia Jauregui. I study at the University of Chicago’s Harris School of Public Policy, as a recipient of a Fulbright-García Robles scholarship and as a CONACYT (Consejo Nacional de Ciencia y Tecnología, México) beneficiary. None of these parties had the right to review the manuscript, and I have no other interests to disclose.

We follow World Bank guidelines of adhering to local standards and regulations on human subjects clearance, and in the case of the current study the review of the World Bank proposed no further review given that the program focused on established firms and it evaluated a program that was funded and affiliated by the Government of Mexico. The purpose of the survey was clearly explained to participants, including the fact that participation in the survey would not have any impact on their participation in any government program, and that results would be kept confidential. Informed consent was then obtained from each survey participant.
