

Disclosure statement for “The Changing Face of Debt and Financial Fragility at Older Ages”
by Annamaria Lusardi, Olivia S. Mitchell, and Noemi Oggero

Annamaria Lusardi is the Denit Trust Chair of Economics and Accountancy at the George Washington University School of Business, where she is also the academic director of the nonprofit Global Financial Literacy Excellence Center (GFLEC). She is also a NBER Research Associate. Her past research has been supported by the Social Security Administration, Netspar, the TIAA Institute, FINRA Investor Education Foundation, the National Endowment for Financial Education, the Financial Literacy Center, the Michigan Retirement Research Center, as well as entities and individuals contributing to GFLEC.

Olivia S. Mitchell is a Professor of Insurance/Risk Management and Business Economics/Policy at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, where she also serves as Director of the Pension Research Council, a Wharton School nonprofit research center. She is a NBER Research Associate and she also serves as an independent Trustee of the Wells Fargo Advantage Funds. Her research has been supported by the Social Security Administration, Netspar, TIAA, the Singapore Management University, and the Michigan Retirement Research Center, as well as entities and individuals contributing to the nonprofit Pension Research Council at the University of Pennsylvania.

Noemi Oggero is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Turin. She declares that she has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.