Motivation

Tariff phase-outs in FTAs

- Proliferation of FTAs since mid-'90s.
- ▶ 12 FTAs for U.S. since NAFTA.
- Tariffs are gradually phased out over many years.

Questions of interest

- How prevalent are tariff phase-outs/product exclusions in U.S. FTAs?
- What determines the liberalization timepaths?
- What is the role of special interest groups?

Why important?

- Protectionism: back with a bite (Fajgelbaum et al. 19).
- Sheds light on political economy forces in FTAs negotiations.

Related Literature

Protection for sale

Interest groups promise gov't contributions for trade protection; gov't maximizes weighted sum of contributions and welfare (Grossman & Helpman 94, 95; Goldberg & Maggi 99; Mitra 99; Gawande & Bandyopadhyay 00).

Firm heterogeneity

- Fixed cost of political organization; firm sorting for sectoral lobbying (Bombardini 08).
- Lobbying firms are pro-liberalization of reciprocal FTAs (Blanba-Gubbay, Conconi & Parenti 19, also see Rodrik 18).

Dynamics of economic integration

 Delayed trade-promoting effects of FTAs due to phase-outs? (Baier & Bergstrand 07; Besedeš, Kohl & Lake 19).

This Paper

Contributions

- Provide novel data on product-level trade commitments in 12 U.S. FTAs since NAFTA.
- Empirically examine lobby-protectionism/liberalization linkages in FTA negotiations.
- Address staging outcomes for both the U.S. and its FTA partners.

This Paper

Preview of findings

- Bulk of U.S. and partner's commitments aimed at continued and immediate liberalization.
- Phase-outs occur in 13% of U.S. products and 27% of partners' products, yet substantial variation per partner.
- With supply-chain linkages, U.S. lobbying is associated with pro-liberalization outcomes in both the U.S.' as well as its partners' FTA product staging commitments.

Lobby Money

Previous studies

- With only a few exceptions, used "lobbying" data from Political Action Committees (PACs) and individual campaign contributions.
- Problem #1: observation is interest group-politician-year (but not: what for?)
- Problem #2: PACs are only about 10% of all lobby dollars (Milyo et al. 2000).

Lobby Money

More recently

- Lobbying Disclosure Act (95) and Honest Leadership and Open Government Act (07).
- Reports filed at Senate Office of Public Records (SOPR) and organized by Centre for Responsive Politics (CRP) and lobbyview.org (Kim 18).
- Observation is firm-(interest group)-industry-issue-quarter.<sup>2</sup>
- Applications to U.S. migration policy (Facchini et al. 11) and trade policy (Blanba-Gubbay et al. 19).

Lobby Money

Identifying relevant contributions: Australia

- 1. For a given timeframe, all reports for "Australia."<sup>3</sup>
- 2. For a given timeframe, all reports for "Australia" and pertaining to trade-related issues.<sup>4</sup>
- 3. For a given timeframe, only reports aimed at implementing the U.S.-Australia FTA in House and Senate Resolutions (HR4759/S2610).
- 4. 2 and 3 combined (no double-counting).

Timing of Lobbying

Step by step...

- Announce negotiations
- Commence negotiations
- Conclude negotiations
- Sign FTA
- Ratify FTA (House, Senate, POTUS)
- Enforce FTA

Lobbying reported...

- 95-07: biannually (LDA 95)

Moving forward

- Pro- vs. anti-liberalization groups (Lake 16).
- Dynamics with foreign lobbying in U.S. (Gawande et al. 06).
- Concessions beyond tariffs, i.e. depth of FTAs and legal enforceability (Hofmann et al. 17; Kohl et al. 16).
- Time-varying IO tables for U.S. and its FTA partners (BEA, OECD, Timmer et al. 15).

Conclusion

Take-aways

- Tariff phase-outs uncommon for U.S. import schedules in FTAs (13% of products).
- U.S.'s FTA partners more prone to phase-outs, but continued/immediate duty-free access is the norm.
- Given supply-chain linkages, U.S. lobbying reduces length of U.S. and partners' phase-outs, suggesting pro-liberalization lobbying in U.S. FTA negotiations.
